Something New.

Sackett Plaster Board.

While it may be practically new in this locality, in other parts it has become widely known. It is made in sheets 32x36 inches, composed of alternate layers of strong wool felt and stucco. It takes the place of lath and plaster, is also used in place of lumber and is easily applied, thereby doing away with high priced labor, as can be seen by the accompanying cut. By applying a putty coat or one thin coat of any good prepared plaster you have a complete plaster finish that is by far a warmer and better job than the lath and plaster. CALL AT OUR OFFICE AND GET SAMPLES AND PRICES. Let us tell you more about it and its usefulness, who has used it in Yale and what they think of it. Keep in mind that we also carry a full line of all kinds of building material, Sewer Pipe, Drain Tile, Soft, Hard and Smithing Coal.

The Postmaster General has issued an order or notice that all rural mail carriers have the right of way on all country roads, and that all carriages or conveyances must surrender that right of way to rural carriers. It is now a serious matter for anyone who obstructs the rapid transportation of the United States Mails.

Now that the city has a team of horses of its own why would it not be a good plan for the council to set a time for hauling the rubbish that has accumulated about the city during the past winter, to the dumping ground recently established. Property owners could in this way get rid of old tin cans, broken crockery and glassware.

John Hutton received an elegant new circular show case of the silent salesman pattern the first of the week and he has placed it in a prominent position in his hardware store and will use it for displaying silverware. It was a present from his brother in North Carolina and was manufactured by a show case company in Grand Rapids.

About thirty members of the Presbyterian Christian Endeavor Society met at the home of Claude Sweet last Monday evening. Games and other amusements were provided. Light refreshments were served, after which all went home declaring they had had an excellent time. The next meeting will be held at the home of Leslie Menzies on June 3.

We believe Mayor Beavis would not only add laurels to his crown but get closer to the hearts of the poorer classes of our citizens by getting the consent of the common council to institute a Pingree potato patch on the unused part of the city gravel pit lot. Small pieces could be given out to each deserving family and allow them to raise potatoes, corn or garden truck.

Services in the People's Temple will be observed at the usual hours Sunday. A brief sermon in the morning on "The Love of God." A reception and communion service will be held. In the evening the sermon subject will be "Angel Ecstasy." A special feature of the services will be singing under the leadership of Mr. Walter M. Wilson, singing evangelist, of Grand Rapids.

Along with the other improvements to the interior of the Paisley the spring Mr. Paisley is having the walls and ceiling of the dining room redecorated. Dusty has the work in charge. On the south side of the hotel a garden plot has been laid out and planted with flower seeds. This spot will be pleasing to the eye and satisfying to the sense of smell when the blossoms are all in bloom during the summer.

We notice in Monday's Free Press a report of the Everett-Jackson game last week, in which our young leaguer, Irwin Gough, made his debut. The paper says: "Manager Bruce Hayes, of Jackson, used the game as a tryout and while Gough was in the box, the Everetts came in sight of the plate at no time." In the summary we find that Gough pitched five innings, allowed but 2 hits, struck out 5 men, gave one man his base on balls, and he himself got one hit. He ought to make good on that record. The pitcher who followed him allowed 3 scores and 3 hits in 4 innings, struck out 2, and gave 3 passes.

Dr. J. B. Stevens says that he always found The Expositor to be truthful and had every confidence in its integrity until he read the item in last week's issue relative to the frog pond located on the vacant lot opposite our office. He questions that statement and has invited us to visit the duck pond south of his office. The Dr. says he is sure that after viewing said cat-hole we will be willing to admit that the one we spoke of cannot begin to compare with it. A "sweet scented aroma" arises and is inhaled by the passerby. The fumes from a garbage wagon are pleasant to the nostril alongside the smell coming from this quagmire.

YALE HANDED MORE LEMONS.

Choice Bits Gleaned From The Tirade On Yale Published In The Mariette Leader Of May 3rd.

We do not consider that a lengthy discussion of the Yale-Mariette debate is necessary, but in order to uphold our position and that of our good citizens, after the scourging Yale received at the hands of two papers last week, we wish to present a few facts which will place before the public the rights of the case and with this we shall have nothing more to say.

"It was a glorious victory, because it made the second and winning decision for Mariette and because the Yale bunch were so cock sure of winning that it was just ludicrous to show them that there was a possibility of their being other towns on the debating map. Yale is a mighty poor loser and the pleasure was all ours. Two of the judges said 'Mariette' and all there was for Yale to do was to stand up and yell 'rotten' and the judges were bought' and this they did in a manner to uphold the reputation that town has for hostility to visitors whenever any contest is on."

Before going any further into this simply delicious effusion, we would like to ask the Leader if we didn't have an excellent chance to yell "the judges were bought" after the decision of last year coming as it did, a greater surprise to Mariette people than to us. How about the judge who declared he would not vote for Yale under any consideration? And didn't he carry out his declaration and vote for Mariette in argument and DELIVERY in spite of the fact that the Yale team was vastly superior in their presentation? Will not the Leader man let his memory carry him back and recall what he himself said after the debate? "That decision was rank. You fellows had us skinned a mile." If he will only remember that but doubtless he won't for policy's sake. Had the decision been awarded to Yale as it should, there would have been no need of third debate.

We will continue with some more tidbits. "The argument advanced by Yale was one of the ready-made kind and taken bodily from Brookings' Briefs for Debate, with the addition of a tirade on members of the Senate filched from the Treason of the Senate published in the Cosmopolitan." We can't see what difference it makes to Mariette from what source our material was obtained. In his tirade the Leader man took great pains not to mention that Mariette based their speeches upon a little booklet issued by Congress, containing thoughts on the subject by Senator Hoar, the greatest orator and grafter in the Senate. Most assuredly Hoar would oppose the election of Senators by the people, in order to retain his seat.

The Leader man however graciously admits the following, "Their team showed well in the matter of oratory, however, and gave their papers in a very pleasing manner. In the matter of delivery they showed good training and were far ahead of their opponents. Thanks Bro. Hubbell."

"The negative speakers gave their arguments clearly, but without any attempt at oratory." We wonder if they could have obtained any, had they attempted it.

In speaking of the series, "It has undoubtedly accomplished a great deal of good, yet much more could have been done could Yale but take a defeat with more grace." We would like to show the Leader man and Mariette how gracefully we can take a "defeat," but when it comes to having been handed two such rank decisions as we have received we are not going to lay down very gracefully and have it rubbed in good and proper.

The school notes in the Leader contained the following, "Not taking into consideration the pleasing decision itself, the debate with Yale last Friday was a great success from the Mariette standpoint. The enthusiasm brought out on this occasion was most beneficial, and in addition the high school may congratulate itself on the freedom shown from contemptible bravado. The high school yells and songs were free from taunts and contrasted strongly with Yale yells. This alone entitles Mariette to some feeling of satisfaction on her part."

Notice they say "pleasing decision." We should think it would be pleasing. It must be a peculiar kind of pleasure, that wrought by a decision unfairly earned and unfairly awarded. The decision came as one of the greatest surprises to both Yale and Mariette. Before the decision was announced several Mariette people on being asked how they thought it was going said, "It's all Yale. Although we yelled for Mariette, yet we know Yale will get the decision."

We would like to whisper in the ears of those persons who thought our yells so full of "bravado," and "taunts" and which "contrasted strongly" with Mariette yells, that the greater part of these yells were patterned after Michigan's.

But the decision has been rendered and as we cannot change it by talking we are going to hold our peace and forget that such a thing as a debate ever occurred.
